MRS. BRAUER IS NOT INSANE

But Expert Says She Has Mental
Of Child of Nine And Thinks
She Could Come Within Scope of Statutory Definition of Insanity—
Other Witnesses Thought Her
"Not Right" At Various Times.

Testimony regarding the actions of Mrs. Anna Brauer after her arrest on a charge of murder, in abandoning her infant child in the woods near Cragsmoor last May, was continued Wednesday afternoon before Arthur C. Connelly, Dr. Mary Gage-Day and Dr. Henry Van Hovenberg, the commissioners appointed by County Judge Fowler to determine her sanity. District Attorney Traver and Assistant District Attorney Brooks appeared for the People and Cleon B. Murray for Mrs. Brauer.

Chief of Police Archibald Freer of Ellenville described conversations had with her while returning with her to Ellenville from Jersey City. He was under the impression the baby had been murdered and asked how she killed it, to which she said she had not killed but only left it in the woods. She did not appear to feel badly over the child's death. During the two days she was in the Ellenville lock-up, she complained of feeling weak and did not care what she ate. She did not talk unless questioned, but answered all questions coherently. She did not impress Chief Freer as being irrational but he thought she was not right because of the way she sat and looked at a person, paying no attention to what was going on; she seemed as if in a stupor. When asked why she left the baby in the woods, she said she did not know.

Policeman John Brown of Ellenville testified Mrs. Brauer told him she did not know why she had left the baby in the woods or why she did not put it in an asylum, or why she had brought it to Cragsmoor instead of throwing it in the river. She had answered all questions coherently and nothing in her talk or actions impressed him as indicating she was insane. But she did not act right, he said, by which he meant she didn't talk except when asked questions, which he thought strange because he had known her ten years ago and then she was always pleasant and jolly. She had asked him whether the baby was dead and he told her it certainly was after being in the woods four days. She replied it must be alive because it had been there only two days. She had told him she had had headaches while in the maternity hospital.

Julius Seth Jocely testified that during her confinement in jail there was nothing in her talk or actions to indicate insanity. Her talk was rational and coherent. She had complained of headaches and after her indictment she remained in bed two days, during which she seemed worried and all broken up.

Dr. Roger Dexter, formerly assistant physician at the Dannemora State Hospital, testified regarding examinations and conversations had with Mrs. Brauer in the jail between May 21 and June 1. There was apparently nothing abnormal about her physical condition except that she was pale and weak from her recent illness. In the mental examination he used the tests used in state hospitals to determine her general attitude and manner and whether she had hallucinations and delusions. He found she had no flight of ideas, her mood was rather indifferent and in a way she did not care. She had slight depression, but showed more indifference; she was slightly emotional and once shed a few tears when talking about her baby. There were no hallucinations or delusions and her memory of the recent past was good except about her leaving the child in the woods.

With considerable detail, said Dr. Dexter, she had described her confinement in the New Jersey hospital and her trip to Cragsmoor. At Middletown she left the train to get a glass of milk, missed her train and then took the next train on the branch line of the Erie to Pine Bush, where she hired an automobile to take her to the gate of the road leading to Cragsmoor. Instead of going directly to the inn because she was too tired to go further, after nursing the baby, she put it down and walked to Ellenville. A few days later, it came to her what she had done; she told the family she worked for about it and started for Ellenville but was arrested at the railroad station.

Dr. Dexter said in his opinion there was nothing abnormal about her, except for this period of which she said she did not remember, but personally he thought she remembered some things which she did not tell him. Describing her early life to Dr. Dexter, she had said she was born in Germany 23 years ago and her brothers and sisters had had flu. She described her farm life in detail. Her school attendance lasted from the ages of seven to fourteen years, when she returned home and worked on the farm, then did housework for two or three years, returned to farm work for two years, resumed housework and then came to America. Mr. Brauer, whom she later married, being a passenger on the same ship. They went to a farm at Chateaufort, a few miles from New York City, where they remained until 1914, when they returned to work at Cragsmoor. Her husband was killed in a runaway accident in October of that year. After that she lived at Ellenville and at Cragsmoor until she was taken to New Jersey. She had told her relation with the Italian cook at a restaurant where she was first employed, which dated back the day they met.

GLENDENNING SUIT IS FOR MILLIONS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Chicago, Oct. 28.—A prolonged and bitter fight for the control of millions loomed today as the result of a suit begun by Mrs. Augusta J. Glendenning to oust her former chauffeur, Thomas Davis, as trustee of the $2,244,000 estate of Robert Glendenning, her husband.

Mrs. Glendenning declares her husband, taken to a sanitarium under the influence of the chauffeur, died mysteriously. She charges that she herself was kidnapped, pronounced insane and shut up in a mad house in Wisconsin.

The widow also has filed suit for $100,000 against Davis and others she alleges aided him to have her confined in an asylum.

Davis, although employed as a chauffeur, is said to be a distant relative of Glendenning and it is for this reason and others that he was made a trustee of the estate, the widow asserts.

Her answers were normal and coherent, said Dr. Dexter, and her recollection of the remote past was as good as that of the average person.

Mrs. Brauer's education had not been very good, said Dr. Dexter, and she could not tell why we celebrate Christmas or Easter, but she was able to give results of multiplication up to nine. She had said she did not think it was right when she left the maternity hospital, but had left because she couldn't sleep there on account of the noise. Her insight as to her situation was normal. In response to the mental tests, he ascertained her mental age was about nine years; while in ordinary matters she showed intelligence, in these tests she was below the average. He would not say she was insane prior to the day she abandoned her baby, and she is now in a normal mental state.

The fits of her brother and sisters, said Dr. Dexter, showed nervous instability of the family. He described her as being a mental defect without psychosis; she is not insane; she believes there is a difference between right and wrong but in many cases she would be influenced by her judgment and reasoning power, both of which are deficient.

On cross-examination by Mr. Murray, Dr. Dexter said her hospital record showed she had headaches everyday except one. In mental diseases he had found pains in the head had no significance. Pains in the head in connection with epilepsy may indicate many things, for instance a disordered digestion. She did not complain of vertigo or dizziness and he could not determine anything of an epileptic nature in the fits of her family. If her mental age was nine years, he would hold her responsible for a person of that age.

He said that in epilepsy, instead of convulsive attacks there was sometimes a condition known as psychic epilepsy, or psychic equivalent, in which a person would cry loudly or wander about, but this condition was quite apt to appear in other forms. He had not observed any sign of epilepsy in her. In a number of cases of psychic epilepsy there is a lapse of memory; many epileptics do not know what they have done when they get over their convulsions.

On re-direct examination, Dr. Dexter said he thought the woman could come within the purview of the statutory definition of insanity, but personally he thought she knew what she was doing.

The Rev. George Ketner, pastor of the Lutheran Church at Ellenville, was called by Mr. Murray out of turn. He testified he knew Mrs. Brauer since May, 1919, when she lived in Ellenville. Her three children had attended Sunday School. He thought the oldest child was a mental defective; when he visited the house the child would stand and stare at him, twist its head, laugh, run away and then come back and do the same thing. Mrs. Brauer's character while she was in Ellenville was above reproach.

Dr. Ketner visited Mrs. Brauer in the lock-up and did not consider that she talked coherently. To questions asked in German, she had said God knew she had not destroyed her child and she did not know why she left it in the woods. She had given him money to deposit in the bank, fearing it would be taken away from her in the jail, and also gave him money to send to the children's home where her children were being kept. When asked for her father's name and address in Germany, she had written the same and address of the family for whom she worked in New Jersey, and it was several minutes before she could think of it. Then she wasn't sure, and said she did not know what was the matter with her as she could not remember anything any more. She had been afraid she would not get fair treatment, but Dr. Ketner had assured her she was in America where everybody got fair treatment, particularly in Kingston.

WILSON IMPROVES, INSISTS GRAYSON

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Whatever the impression gained by the delegation of supporters of the league of nations received by President Wilson yesterday, it was made evident today that their statement on the president's physical condition represented their own conclusions only.

Secretary Tumulty was emphatic in pointing out that the informal statement of the delegation headed by Hamilton Holt must not be regarded as sponsored by the White House.

Admiral Grayson, the president's physician was equally responsive in declaring that the president is stronger than at any time since being taken ill. When read the delegation's statement to the effect that "it was nothing less than tragic that the great president of the United States should have been brought to such a stricken physical condition," he declared the improvement in the president's health, while slow, had been steady and without relapse. In answer to the comment of the delegation, that his address yesterday might "be the president's final appeal to the conscience of his countrymen in the supreme moral decision that they are called upon to make," Admiral Grayson asserted that the president showed absolutely no ill effects from the visit of the delegation or the strain of his speech to them.

A HALLOWEEN SUCCESS

Given By Presbyterian Girls in Chapel of Church Wednesday.

A Halloween entertainment given by the girls of the fish pond booth, Mrs. Harold L. Van Deusen, chairman, in the chapel of the Roundout Presbyterian Church Wednesday evening was a decided success, and those who took part deserve great credit for a delightful evening's entertainment. Mrs. Harry Yale and Dr. C. H. Bishop gave vocal solos, and were obliged to respond to encores, while pleasing piano solos were given by Miss Helen Smith and Miss Greta Linkletter, who were also encores. The program opened with the ghost walk given by a number of the young folks. Readings on the spirit of Halloween were given by Miss Lillian Metcalf, Miss Kathleen Meeker and Miss Janet Brown. The famous witches scene from Macbeth was given by the Misses Jacquelyn Monroe, Elizabeth Bishop and Ruth Scott, and the introduction was read by Miss Sarah LeFever. The cake booth was in charge of Mrs. I. W. Scott, assisted by Miss Arnold and Miss Grace Terwilliger, while the ice cream booth was in charge of Mrs. Van Deusen and Mrs. Harry Yale. The Hindoo scene—Tom Rowland—was assisted by John Connolly, Dorris Monroe and Miss Ruth Scott, gave a number of entertaining readings of the palm of the visitors to the fortune telling booth.

"BLACK AND TANS" FIRED.

Ten Dismissed. Presumably Because of Reprisals.

London, Oct. 28.—An intimation that the British government has begun disciplinary action to prevent reprisals by Sinn Feiners and "black and tan" policemen throughout Ireland, was seen in the announcement today by Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, that ten constables have been dismissed from the service this week for breach of discipline. The announcement was made just before the House of Commons adjourned last night.

Fair Street Reformed Entertainment.

There will be an entertainment on Friday evening, October 29, in the Fair Street Reformed Church under the auspices of the W. O. W. Class. Real home grown chicken will be served with "all the fixings" and old fashioned apple and pumpkin pie. The committee in charge of the affair and fancy articles, table favors and decorations very hard to come by, are sure that the affair will also be one of the attractions.

PLAYGROUNDS OF THE STATE

Notariously Given Visible Evidence By

Commissioner Pratt of How Conservation Commission Improves and Replants, Forests, Reduces Fire Loss and Prevents Extinction of Fish and Game—Remarkable Results in Oyster Propagation.

An illustrated talk on the work of his department, given by George D. Pratt, conservation commissioner of the state of New York, was the feature of the monthly evening dinner of the Rotary Club Wednesday evening. The pictures were both stereopticon and moving film and served to illustrate the manifold functions by the Conservation Commission and the need for its work. A fly that got in the stereopticon added something not on the program by getting itself projected on the screen, where it seemed as big as a camel and went through a lot of amusing gyrations. Perhaps it was a trained fly that Commissioner Pratt carries with him. Such a thing would be little more remarkable than the pictures shown of tame raccoons, skunks, bears, partridge, deer and other animals.

Starting with the assertion that the people should be induced to realize that "everything publicly owned belongs to all of us," Commissioner Pratt gave a most interesting and informing description of the work of the commission and the need for that work. Forest conservation, as well as to furnish camp sites and a playground. Forest fires must be prevented or controlled. To make the forest preserves more useful to the people and also to prevent the starting of fires by careless tourists, camp sites are being designated and equipped with fireplaces. Lean-tos are being built so the campers need not carry a tent. Trails are being placarded. The 900 squatters on state lands have been evicted, only about 100 who have raised the question of title for the courts to decide remaining. Forest fire losses, which were $800,000 in 1918, were less than $4,000 last year. Education of the tourists is largely to be credited for this showing.

White pine blister rust was illustrated and the work of stamping it out by the destruction of all currant and gooseberry bushes in the forests described. Forest nurseries grow 30,000,000 trees each year which are used to plant denuded state lands or sold at cost to citizens. The state has 50,000 acres yet to plant and planted 7,500,000 trees last year.

Work of the state fish hatcheries, in which 500,000,000 fish were hatched last year. Three years ago 175,000 pounds of shad were caught by Hudson river fishermen. For the first time in the history of the state commercial fishermen asked that fishing be restricted and that a section of the river five miles above Kingston be set aside as a protected spawning ground. This was done. The Day Line boats slow down during the spawning season in passing through this area. Two years ago the shad catch was 399,000 pounds. By protecting spawning grounds and lessening pollution the Hudson will, in time, be brought back to its old condition as a shad fishing ground.

Protection of birds and fur bearing animals was discussed and the statement made that cats did $1,000,000 damage each year in New York state by destroying birds and that the fur catch in New York state is worth $2,500,000 a year, of which $1,000,000 is for skunk skins. Beaver, which were placed in the Adirondacks a few years ago, are being removed as they proved to be a nuisance.

Permission to shoot does during the open season in the Adirondacks last year resulted in 29,000 of the total of 50,000 deer being killed and there is no hunting this year. The hunter is permitted now to shoot one buck and deer are so scarce that he doesn't get that one. The open season on doe last year set the state back three years on its deer herds.

The artificial propagation of oysters, recently undertaken by the state, was illustrated and described. Commissioner Pratt regards this project as very hopeful. Oysters of market size are five years old. A female oyster may lay a million eggs in a year of which, under natural conditions, less than a thousand will mature. Under artificial propagation 80 to 90 per cent of the eggs are developed into oysters. A process for purifying oysters that feed in polluted water has been tried and found practical and next summer it is hoped that Hamilton Bay oysters, purified by a chlorine process very much as city water supplies are purified, will be on the market.

Pollution of streams, control of flow and development of water power were discussed. The state should give the power of water power, rather than to develop state ownership of water power plants. We have had enough experience with state-run railroads, telegraph and postal facilities to teach us to keep away from state ownership.

Commissioner Pratt delighted his audience for nearly an hour with pictures and informal but informing talk and the checks presented by President Foster on behalf of the Rotary Club were no more perfunctory matter.

ROOSEVELT TALK THRILLS AUDIENCE

Incidents in Life of Former President Related By His Close Friend, Dr. Iglehart, At St. James's.

On Wednesday evening, October 27, the anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt, there gathered at the St. James M. E. Church a large audience to hear the Rev. Dr. Ferdinand Iglehart deliver an address on "Theodore Roosevelt, the Man as I Knew Him." While it is true that "All the world loves a lover," it is equally true that all the world loves and honors a loyal friend, and the audience that celebrated the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt on Wednesday evening was held profoundly interested both by the subject and the speaker, whom Dr. Baragwanath described well as possessed of perennial youth, and whose worth was well known by his works.

Dr. Iglehart's enthusiasm over anything or anybody worthy of his attention at all, has undoubtedly been one of the potent factors in keeping him so young in spite of an approaching eightieth birthday, so it was to be expected that his enthusiasm should reach white heat in the speaking of his loved and revered friend, whose biographer Dr. Iglehart is.

Dr. Iglehart called to mind that there was no great demonstration sixty-two years ago when Theodore Roosevelt was born in the house at 18 East 20th street, just off of Broadway, New York city, but before the end of his life he had made the bells to ring, whistles to blow, men and women by thousands to take up a life of service! The speaker said he would like to mix in a caldron, physical strength, athletic agility, intellectual ability, enterprise, will, courage, character, love of country, love of God, love of books, progress, civilization, realism, as the finished product, Americanism; and then he would pronounce Theodore Roosevelt a typical American who was 100% pure American.

The departments, all of the departments of Roosevelt's mind, the speaker counted colossal, and special stress was laid upon his reflective quality which Dr. Iglehart considered almost equal to that of Abraham Lincoln. In fact so great was this reflective quality of mind, that at times during his career he seemed to think not only for his party, but for all the people of the country. His retentive memory was marvelous, for he never forgot names or faces nor what had been told him, nor what he had read. Yet in spite of his wonderful mental faculties, Roosevelt himself always insisted that he was no genius, only an ordinary man who had good horse sense and was an enormous worker.

Dr. Iglehart said that was one time when he could not agree with his friend, and he asked him how it was that if he was no genius, he could write forty books that would last; could know the names of practically all the animals and birds; was a past master in the sciences of geology, astronomy, statescraft; was the youngest man to grace the presidential office of the United States; could deliver such addresses that he was sought out as speaker by the great universities of Europe as well as this country. His genius was undoubtedly greatly enhanced by his industry, for he put in hours almost beyond belief on work. Dr. Iglehart's anecdote about Roosevelt's friends trying to find a new book that he had not read, was most amusing.

Roosevelt was a great orator, judged by the impress his oratory made upon his hearers. The speaker said he had in a marked degree the Harvard style of oratory, saying what was wanted to be said in the shortest possible way; and following up each thought with his logical thought. The speaker counted Roosevelt at his best in oratory close to Lincoln's best, the immortal Gettysburg address.

And Roosevelt had a sense of humor and humor itself. Washington had no humor; Lincoln was the funniest and the funniest in all the nation, with the fun and the sadness side by side a part of the same issue. Roosevelt was humorous, not sad, and counted himself the happiest man that ever lived because God had given him everything that a man could desire.

Dr. Iglehart told of going to Washington on Saturday to be on hand for a visit with Roosevelt on Monday relative to some position he hoped to secure for a friend. Sunday morning Dr. Iglehart, having learned where the president attended church, walked in that direction, and when near to the president and inside upon Dr. Iglehart going to church with him. After the service, as they were walking along, the president exclaimed, "Isn't that funny, 'Holy, Holy, Holy! Lord God Almighty!' go all well! And isn't it great to be able to go to church and sing such hymns and music?" As the speaker assumed, the president attended the little, unpretentious church, because it was a Dutch Reformed Church, the church of his father, as well as his own church, and because plain people attended services there and he liked to worship with the plain people.

Later in the day, during a walk, Mr. Roosevelt unburdened his heart to Dr. Iglehart on the subject which was causing him some distress and anxiety: the debt which on of organized capital against the government, of fiscal capitalization against the government. He told the speaker that he was not prepared to put up with it.

MAC SWINEY'S FUNERAL HUGE

Ten Thousand at London Services—Sinn Fein Army Men Present—U. S. Flag Carried in Procession to Station—Body Goes to Ireland.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, Oct. 28.—A vast multitude of 10,000 persons today attended the public funeral of the late Terence Mac Swiney in St. George's Roman Catholic Cathedral, Southwark. Elaborate precautions had been taken by Scotland Yard to prevent disorders and 400 policemen were massed about the cathedral, but there were no disturbances. Thousands who could not enter the church viewed the body after the services.

There was a dramatic incident just before the Requiem High Mass when four men cast aside their long coats and stood before the catafalque attired in uniform of the Sinn Fein army with swords at their side.

There was a solemn and impressive cortege from the cathedral to Euston Station in the afternoon when the body was shipped to Ireland for burial.

At the head of each section of the funeral procession were men carrying United States flags and Sinn Fein flags.

London, Oct. 28.—Amidst heart rending scenes of emotion, funeral services were conducted today at St. George's Roman Catholic Cathedral, Southwark, for the late Terence Mac Swiney, lord mayor of Cork, who died in the seventy-fourth day of his hunger strike at Brixton Jail.

Earlier in the morning numerous workers, mostly clerks, postal employees, telegraphers and telephone operators, who had visited the church for devotional service, joined in a dirge for the repose of the soul of the dead patriot.

Crowds began to gather about the church long before the hour for the funeral service to begin. Police lined the streets. In the church the pews quickly filled. Sobs mingled with muffled exclamations of grief.

The plain and simple coffin, draped with the Sinn Fein flag, and banded with flowers, rested in state on a catafalque before the high altar at the head of the church. It had been placed there by tender hands after the removal of the body from Brixton Jail late yesterday following the inquest. A death watch kept guard over the body all night long, the warders being relieved at intervals of three hours.

More than 10,000 persons filed past the coffin before the doors of the cathedral closed at 10 o'clock. Many men night workers visited the church after midnight and, being unable to enter, knelt in silent homage outside. Inside the cathedral members of the Mac Swiney family sat throughout the long night, occupying mourners' benches facing the catafalque. The scene was one of tragic solemnity. Candles in brass holders as high as a man's head burned dimly beside the coffin.

The only discordant note in the press comment upon Mac Swiney's death and burial was sounded in the Morning Post. This newspaper printed a protest against the government's decision to permit a funeral procession.

A solemn funeral service will be held at Dublin, when the body arrives there en route for Cork, where it will be buried on Sunday beside the Sinn Fein volunteers, who "fell in action."

Arthur Griffith, "father" of the Irish republic, in the absence of President De Valera, announced that, out of respect for the memory of Terence Mac Swiney, tomorrow will be observed as a day of national mourning throughout Ireland. All business will be suspended. Only essential service will be maintained.

AUXILIARY TEA AT BENEDICTINE

The tea given by the officers of the Benedictine Sanitarium Auxiliary, to members of the auxiliary and their friends at the sanitarium on Wednesday afternoon, proved to be a most delightful affair in every way, and was attended by some sixty or seventy guests. The reception room of the sanitarium was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves and yellow and white chrysanthemums. Mrs. M. Clyde Crosby having charge of the decorating.

The tea table was particularly attractive with its beautiful service and the decorations of yellow and white chrysanthemums. Mrs. Eastman, president of the auxiliary, Mrs. James Jenkins and Miss Rosecrans, presided at the tea table, and the Misses Mary Louise Kearney, Elizabeth Kearney, Marjorie Dwyer, Katherine Reardon, served the guests.

During the afternoon a charming program was rendered for the entertainment of those present. After Mrs. Eastman had told of the finally accomplished fact of the new nurses' dormitory, and the need of necessary equipment and furnishings for the same, she asked for the continued enthusiastic support and co-operation of every member of the auxiliary in any effort that it might be necessary for the auxiliary to make to do its part in the completing of this great addition to the sanitarium.

MATTERS BEFORE SURROGATE GILL

The will of the late Herman Marblestone of this city was filed with Surrogate Gill in the surrogate's court Tuesday and a citation for its probate was issued returnable December 6. By his will Mr. Marblestone gives his entire estate to his wife, Mrs. Minnie Marblestone, whom he appoints executrix. The will was executed April 9, 1907, and witnessed by Corporation Counsel William D. Brinler of this city and Benjamin Rowe of Saugerties. The value of the real estate exceeds $10,000 and the personal property exceeds $10,000 in value. Virgil B. Van Wagoner appeared for the executrix.

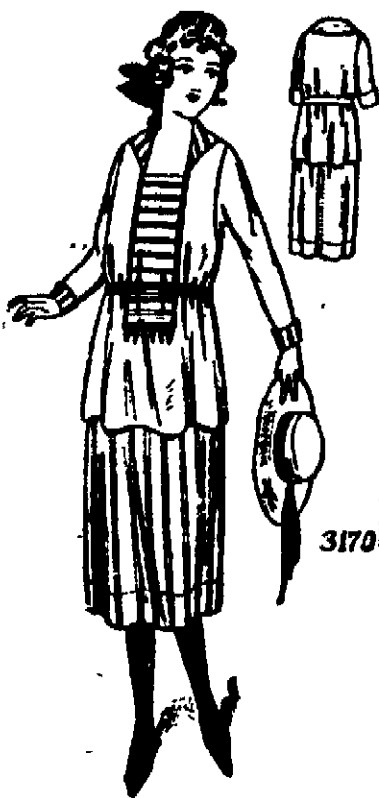

A hearing was had in the matter of the application of Fred C. Blodgett for letters of administration with the will annexed on the estate of the late Mary A. Blodgett of the town of Shandaken. Her will was admitted to probate on August 31, 1891. Charles C. Blodgett, the executor named in the will, died September 31 of this year at Pine Hill. Mr. Blodgett, the petitioner, states that the value of his estate, testatrix possessed at the time of her death, together with the probable amount to be recovered by right of any action granted, as executor or administrator, by a special provision of law, and the value of the real estate or proceeds which may come into the hands of an executor or administrator by virtue of the provisions of the will, will not exceed the sum of $4,000. Under the will, Emma A. Blodgett, a daughter, whose name now is Emma A. Benedict, was given a legacy of $500, which Mr. Blodgett states has been paid. Mr. Blodgett is one of the residuary legatees under the will, and the other residuary legatees and devisees are Mrs. Benedict, who resides at Albany, and Adella A. Meehan, a daughter, who resides at Pine Hill. Surrogate Gill granted letters of administration with the will annexed to Mr. Blodgett and approved his bond as administrator. Virgil B. Van Wagoner appeared for Mr. Blodgett.

In the estate of Frederick Happy, a consent by Josephine Happy, the life tenant, to the payment by Frank B. Happy and Emory Happy of legacies bequeathed to her grandchildren Kenneth Frederick Happy, Margaret Happy, Kathryn Estelle Happy, Kathleen Happy, Oliver Dean Shultis and Donald Emory Shultis, was filed by Senator Charles W. Walton.

In the estate of Michael Brennan of this city, a decree passing and approving the judicial settlement of the account of Matthew D. Brennan, the administrator, has been granted by Surrogate Gill and filed. The account of Mr. Brennan shows that the amount of money which came into his hands was $3,328.81. Judge James A. Bette, appeared for Mr. Brennan.

In the estate of Gertrude DuBois of the town of New Paltz, a decree passing and approving the account of Solomon DuBois, the executor, has been granted by Surrogate Gill and filed. The account shows that the executor received a total of $22,488.46. John N. Vanderlyn is attorney for Mr. DuBois.

Last Night's Audience Mystified by Phonograph

Drawn from actual photograph

Hears famous soprano

compare voice with RE-CREATION by Edison's new phonograph—could not tell the two apart

MISS LEETA CORDER, prima donna soprano of New York, gave an extraordinary recital last night at the High School Auditorium.

Miss Corder walked on to the stage and stood beside a stately cabinet. She began to sing Gounod's "Ave Maria." The audience immediately yielded to the spell of her beautiful voice. Then suddenly there was a stir—a subdued murmur of surprise—and a perplexed rubbing of eyes. Miss Corder's voice continued to fill the auditorium with undiminished sweetness—your ears were proof of that—but her lips had become absolutely silent—your eyes told you that.

What wizardry was this? It was the test of direct comparison with the living artist, which Thomas A. Edison has developed to demonstrate that the Official Laboratory Model of his new phonograph will sing any song exactly as it was sung by the artist, and that his Re-Creation of a singer's voice, as it comes from his wonderful new phonograph, positively cannot be distinguished from the singer's actual voice, when both are heard in direct comparison.

Miss Corder made repeated comparisons—always with the same result. Then, to demonstrate that Edison's new phonograph has absolutely no limitations, Miss Lucille Collette made similar tests with her violin. It was truly wonderful. This master achievement of the great wizard, Edison, marks a new epoch in music.

'The Phonograph With a Soul'

You can have a duplicate of the wonderful instrument used at that concert and, if you act quickly, we can furnish you with an engraved certificate certifying that it is an exact duplicate in total quality of the instrument she used in her amazing comparison; also that it will sustain precisely the same test.

We have ten of the famous Official Laboratory Models and Miss Corder certified every one of them. Come to our store at once and ask to see and hear the Official Laboratory Models on which Miss Corder has issued her Certificates of Authenticity.

REGULAR ELKS ROLL VICTORY

Kingston Lodge of Elks has a bowling team, and Captain Edward Cashin believes his men are among the best bowlers in this vicinity. Dr. Morton Low, another Elk, thought differently and challenged the Regulars to a match game Wednesday night at the Elks' Club. Dr. Low assembled Bowlers Styles, Kohl, Hynes and Malsenfelder, and named them the Scrubs, while the Regulars comprised Cashin, Emerick, Maxon, Vogel and Weiss. The Regulars won three straight games easily by a total pin score lead of 300 pins. Dr. Low is far from discouraged, however, and will get his team together this week for signal drill, and they will bowl the Regulars again next Wednesday evening.

PAY-AS-YOU-GO.

Commissioner Greene Tels Downsville Road Boosters.

Frederick S. Greene, state highway commissioner, reiterated his stand for the "pay as you go policy" in highway road construction, at a meeting of 500 residents of Downsville, Delaware county, Tuesday night. The meeting was called to consider prospects of building the thirteen mile road from Downsville to East Branch. Commissioner Greene said the road could not be built unless another bond issue is provided, or the county appropriates the money. "This rule I have rigidly followed since I have been commissioner," Mr. Greene said. "It will not be broken. The Downsville road will connect with the main highway from Binghamton to New York and should be constructed. I hope I shall be able to build it before my term of office expires."

SAYS BIDS ARE FOR VOTE BAIT

Judge Miller Exposes Real Purpose of Highway Commissioner in Advertising.

STAGGERING COST PLANNED.

Governor Wants to Spend a Half Billion Dollars and is Scrapping Good Highways.

New York.—Charging that Highway Commissioner Frederick S. Greene after having declared last spring that he would build no more roads on account of high prices in now advertising for bids is only doing this for political effect, Judge Nathan L. Miller, Republican candidate for governor, turned the searchlight into that department and exposed what, he says, speaks in eloquent terms of the extravagance prevailing there. Five of the roads the commissioner is advertising bids for are to cost $62,000 a mile.

In his speeches up state Judge Miller said: "You know that so far as new state construction of highways is concerned it has entirely stopped, broken down. It was intended to me a day or two ago that they were about to advertise for bids for some new highways. Election is but a few days off. If you see any of those notices you may put it down that they are advertisements, not for real bids, but for votes."

Program Breaks Down.

"The program of new construction has completely broken down. The bond money isn't all gone; it nearly is, but there is still some left, and there is no constructive program put forward for completing our system of good roads.

"Now, what are they doing as to maintenance? It cost under the last Republican administration to maintain something like 6,900 miles of highway—and remember that was at the high prices, 1918—$4,700,000. Last winter the governor and his highway commissioner pleaded with the legislature to appropriate $15,000,000 to maintain 7,000 miles, an addition of only 400 miles. They got $7,500,000, and the commissioner is going over the state scrapping perfectly good roads and reconstructing them at a cost of $30,000 to $40,000 a mile.

"He says that the old roads are so good, that they have all got to be scrapped within the next five or six years, and he has embarked on a reconstruction program at a cost of between $30,000 and $40,000 a mile, and with the 7,000 and odd miles that we have got already under construction or constructed that means a cost of $200,000,000 and more for the next six or seven years if we do it. "In addition to your $200,000,000 and more for maintenance, or for reconstruction of existing highways, the Highway Commission has presented a program for 4,500 miles of new road at a cost of $30,000 a mile. That is $135,000,000 more. There is a program of $500,000,000 under a pay-as-you-go plan. See what that means! If it is done in six or seven years it would cost $250,000,000 a year. It would cost $250,000,000 a year if you took 20 years to do it.

Plunging Up Cost.

"And meanwhile the counties, practicing sound engineering, practicing common sense and sanity, are constructing and maintaining their own county highways, and boards of supervisors in many counties are preferring to construct county highways than to have the state do it because it costs so much when the state does it. "Now, I submit that as compared to Governor Smith's promise to economize his performance in the one thing in which he has had an opportunity to perform doesn't hold out any alluring hope that things would be any better if he is given the power which he is asking to have a four year term of office and the arbitrary and uncontrolled power to appoint and remove all heads of departments.

"I propose to administer the duties of the office after January 1 just as though I am to have only one term. I don't propose to administer those duties for the purpose of furthering my own or anybody else's political ambitions, and, my friends, whether it is two years or four years about all that any administration can do is to leave a good record. It then rests with the people whether these policies shall be continued or not."

The Old Farmer Reminds.
In every small town there is a tough old backslider who likes to point with pride to the fact that Tommy Brown, who was the worst boy in town, is now a preacher; and that Willie Green, who was the best boy in Sunday school, is now the son of a North Powder (Ore.) man.

KINGSTON, N. Y. OCT. 28, 1920

On Sunday the farmers of New York state will be again reminded of Governor Smith's attitude toward them by the fact that the rest of the state will set their clocks and watches back one hour so that God's time and Governor Smith's time will again correspond. Experience had taught the farmers the futility of making a radical change when it was not needed. They learned by experience that the dew cannot be dried any quicker merely because the hands of the clock are moved, but Governor Smith didn't know it. He would have known had he been a farmer, which again demonstrates the fact that experience is the most valuable asset a man can have for without it he is likely, for instance, to fall in the same error as Governor Smith, with consequent disruption of existing conditions without the accomplishment of any practical good. Instead of bringing benefit, the change resulted in far-reaching damage, and all because Governor Smith tried to pass judgment on the needs of the farmers without having had any of the farmers' experience. Except in story books, men do not acquire sudden ability such as was—and is—required of the governor, which comes only through experience. It is Governor Smith's misfortune to have been brought up under city influences instead of the pure atmosphere of the country, where he would have learned not only about the futility of saving daylight, but also many other useful things, all of which would have worked for the benefit instead of the harm of the farmer.

The development of the Rondout valley into a busy summer boarding section has been attended with a great number of accidental deaths among the summer visitors and the record of such deaths during the past season has called attention forcibly to the need of a coroner there. In all such cases the coroner performs an important function and his services in most cases cannot be performed by anyone else. It is the coroner who takes charge not only of the body but of the personal effects of the victim and holds them until they can be turned over to the family or legal representative. The coroner is responsible, and in addition to the duty cited there are numerous other small duties and attentions for the family which he performs. It is thirty-two years since the town of Wawarsing has been honored by the election of a coroner, and for this important office the town this year asks the voters to support Howard B. Humiston of Kerhonkson, who was selected by the Republican convention last August, whose action was approved in the Republican primary election. Mr. Humiston has proved himself successful in business and business success is not achieved except by close attention to detail. Official work of the kind performed by a coroner requires close application to detail, and Mr. Humiston by his record has displayed the qualifications necessary. Voters of all parties will agree that present-day demands require the election of Mr. Humiston next Tuesday.

Senator Charles W. Walton's claim to further recognition by the voters of Ulster county does not rest entirely on his efforts in the upper house of the state legislature in securing the passage of the Rondout creek bridge bill last winter, although the passage of that bill brings home forcibly how valuable a man becomes to the public through years of experience. Senator Walton has taken his place among the foremost of the legislators of the state and during the past two years undoubtedly will be the Republican leader of the senate because of his seniority. At Albany, as elsewhere, acceptable public service is rewarded liberally, and the experienced legislator soon becomes acquainted with the needs of the whole people. This knowledge has been acquired in Senator Walton during his successive terms and one of his most important measures last year was the Walton arbitration bill which provides for arbitration in all controversial matters and makes it mandatory for a person who has submitted his dispute to arbitration to continue to arbitrate instead of being permitted to withdraw after arbitration has begun. This is only one of many measures which have been prepared because of his intimate knowledge of conditions, which was acquired only by experience. "One good term deserves another" in the minds of all fair-minded men, and in Senator Walton's case the good terms he has served should be succeeded by other good terms which will be good not only for the people of Ulster county but of the entire Empire State.

draw after arbitration has begun. This is only one of many measures which have been prepared because of his intimate knowledge of conditions, which was acquired only by experience. "One good term deserves another" in the minds of all fair-minded men, and in Senator Walton's case the good terms he has served should be succeeded by other good terms which will be good not only for the people of Ulster county but of the entire Empire State.

It is a matter of pride to the voters of Ulster county that during the first term in the state assembly Simon B. Van Wageningen was largely instrumental in securing for his county the appropriation of $420,000 by the last legislature. This appropriation could not have been secured if the two representatives of Ulster county in the legislature had not been men of ability and experience, for these are the qualifications which spell success in public office. In acquiring experience in the practical school of hard work, Mr. Van Wageningen learned many practical lessons of human nature, and these he was enabled to use with good effect in showing to his fellow legislators that the bridge is not simply a local matter but is of state-wide importance. Having accomplished so much during only one year of legislative experience, is it not fair to assume even greater accomplishment for the public in succeeding terms in the assembly?

Opposition to the re-election of United States Senator James W. Wadsworth is rapidly disappearing and women who formerly talked of voting for one of his opponents are uniting in his support as they realize the principles involved in his re-election and the value of his services to the Empire State and to the entire country. From the beginning of his campaign Senator Wadsworth has received the loyal support of a staunch committee of prominent Republican women of the state who promptly realized the loss which state and nation would sustain should they be deprived of his further services. His long experience as assemblyman at Albany, particularly as Speaker of the lower house, before his election to the United States Senate six years ago, and his Congressional experience furnish the best test of fitness, according to the standards of the new women voters, and their standards in this respect are not far different from those of the men. In all his public services, Senator Wadsworth has shown marked ability and sincerity of purpose to discharge his duties conscientiously. He is opposed heartily to the League of Nations and for that reason he seeks to uphold the plans fully formulated by Senator Warren G. Harding and Governor Calvin Coolidge. Senator Wadsworth has visited Ulster county so often he might almost be considered an own son, to whose ability and experience the county will show its appreciation by a large majority on election day.

The attack made on the state court of claims under the Dix administration is well remembered. It was turned over completely to the Democrats. During the Whitman administration it was restored and to day is composed of four Republicans and one Democrat. Should the Tammany candidate for governor be re-elected he would have the appointment of two judges to succeed Judges Ackerson and Cunningham, both Republicans. This would permit him to name two Tammany friends, making the court stand three Democrats and two Republicans. This would be fine for upstate and farmers who have claims against the state, submitting their claims to a court manned by Tammany men. And they would be Tammany men if "Al" the Mol of Tammany, had anything to say about the appointments. Tammany contractors always take an interest in this court.

LOUWISCH CALLED HIMSELF A RABBI

Investigation Will Be Made by Jewish Welfare Society as to His Right to Title.

Poughkeepsie, Oct. 24.—The Jewish Welfare Society of New York has decided to send two representatives to Poughkeepsie to make a thorough inquiry into the Louwisch affair.

All Hebrews, it is stated, recognize the great influence which this organization exerts, because of its own high position and also by reason of its interest in educational and social matters as affecting its co-religionists.

One local Hebrew of considerable prominence admitted that the probe had been asked for.

A point of considerable importance, ethically speaking, will be determined, namely, whether Mr. Louwisch is justified in calling himself a rabbi.

Joseph Kerliansky, Mrs. Ida Lippman and Mrs. E. Levine appeared in the city court Tuesday in response to a notification issued by Judge Conner on request of John E. Mack to explain charges made by Mrs. Jennie Friedman, of 34 South Bridge street, that they had made threats against her because she had Dr. Louwisch as a boarder, and because she testified for Dr. Louwisch in the annulment proceedings against his wife.

Through James E. Carroll, their attorney, all three denied having made any threats, and also denied that they took any part in the chase of Dr. Louwisch on Sunday night, as they all claim to have been in other parts of the city at the time and therefore have alibi to present.

Upon request of Mr. Mack the case was held open until a deposition may be made by Mrs. Friedman.

AT THE THEATERS.

Pauline Frederick in "Keeney"—"Adam and Eva" Coming.

"The Woman in Room 13" is a picture which calls for strong and emotional acting; and Miss Frederick as one of America's foremost screen actresses was ably cast for the part of Laura Bruce. This attraction is showing at Keeney's tonight only. John Bowers is supporting Miss Frederick in the part of Paul Ramsey, and his interpretation of the young, poor and ambitious man who discovers his employer endeavoring to compromise his wife affords him an opportunity for some masterly acting. The villain of the story is Robert McKim. Tomorrow and Saturday Herbert Howarth in "Below the Surface," a new story said to be more powerful than "Behind the Door."

Is a woman a man's equal or is she just man's plaything? The question is answered in "Man's Plaything," which is the attraction at the Auditorium tonight. Tomorrow afternoon only Romaine Fielding in "A Woman's Man."

A clever play and a beautiful production combine to make "Adam and Eva" one of the biggest comedy hits in years. The tour is under the personal direction of F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest, and will come to the Kingston Opera House Saturday matinee and night.

Charles K. Champlin and his organization of associate players of recognized ability and reputation will open a week's engagement at the Opera House commencing Monday and continuing all next week. Mr. Champlin realizes that to hold the patronage for his company year after year there must be something tangible, some inducement, the creation of a desire to see him and his company. He strives to accomplish this objective by giving good clean performances of plays that have won recognition on Broadway.

Secure Position.

BARGE CANAL IS COMPLETED

Accounts State Engineer Williams in Address At Buffalo—Asks Credit Men's Aid in Furthering Interest in Waterway.

State Engineer Frank M. Williams, in an address before the Credit Men's Association at Buffalo, New York, yesterday, told them that the Barge Canal was completed, despite rumors to the contrary, and suggested that they aid in furthering the interest of the waterway by assisting in the organization of operating companies. Mr. Williams said, in part:

"The Barge Canal has been constructed with a depth of 12 feet and the superintendent of public works is required to maintain it to that depth. To do this requires constant attention by way of dredging but it is done, nevertheless, and there is no reason to believe that it cannot always be so maintained."

"The United States government is operating 73 barges and 21 steel steamers, the Inland Marine Corporation 50 barges and 10 steamers, the Lake Champlain Transportation Company has 24 barges and the Murrays Transportation Company has 26 barges in use. The Transmarine Corporation has a number of steel barges operating and is constructing others. There are about 500 boats of the old type owned or chartered to industries. These firms include the General Electric Company, several cement companies, the American Radiator Company, the Standard Oil Company and others. The Standard Oil Company has seven or eight tankers in operation and is operating these as far north as Burlington, Vt., and as far west as Rochester and I am informed that at several places where the company has rail connections, they have not brought in a carload of oil by rail during the past season but have used the canal instead. The company has stations on the canal at nearly every piece of land and size and at Rochester, it has spent $110,000 to construct a turning basin alone. This clearly demonstrates that the Standard Oil Company, with its array of engineers, statisticians, and economists, think that the canal is a going proposition, and it shows, in no uncertain terms, that the canal is a success."

"There is great need of acquainting people of the availability of the water route. Almost a generation of men have grown up who think of transportation in terms of rail shipments only and these men must be converted to think in terms of water routes as well. They will find it greatly to their advantage in the things that means most to them—financial consideration. On the other hand, some merchants and shippers are aware of the situation and they have found that at the present time, there is a shortage of carriers. I know of merchants shipping against each other for cargo space and I even know where individual boat operators have jumped their contracts and taken what might be called 'outlaw' freight in order to obtain the increased rates which they were offered. The demand for boats is pressing and even the high cost of construction has had to give way to the demand for barges. There is money in handling freight by the canal, even in face of the price of constructing new boats."

"The state officials who have canal matters in charge are doing everything they can to push the project and it is up to the people to cooperate and obtain the benefits to be derived from the expenditure of $16,000,000 of their money. The canal is what it was intended to be it is a great proposition and needs your honest support. I therefore give you four lines of missionary work which you can follow. First, urge upon the members of the legislature favorable action on appropriation of funds for the further development of the Buffalo and other terminals. Second, assist in the organization of competent operating companies and the building of barges. Third, divert your own freight to the canal. Fourth, urge similar action upon your business friends and acquaintances. If you and others will do these things it is my honest belief that the Barge Canal will soon come into its own and you and the people—the stockholders in this great waterway—will reap the benefit."

Years ago, for their personal use and to send to friends at Christmas, members of the Arbuckle firm selected Yuban from all the coffees of the world.

Quickly Yuban acquired a private reputation so great that persistent demands to be allowed to buy it developed.

Then it was offered the public—first in New York, then in Chicago. Before it had been on the New York market five months, more of it was being sold than of any other coffee. Before it had been on the Chicago market four months, more of it was being sold than of any other coffee.

Year after year the popularity of Yuban increases. Year after year its fame spreads farther. Today people even hundreds of miles away are asking their grocers to get it. Others are sending for it to Chicago and New York grocers.

Now arrangements have been made by which you can get Yuban from your local grocer. Read below the names of the grocers near your house who can supply you with Yuban.

Like the people of Chicago and New York, you will be quick to appreciate the opportunity of getting this wonderful coffee in your own neighborhood.

HUGHES STRONGLY ENDORSES MILLER

Charles E. Hughes, as chairman of the Nathan L. Miller lawyers' committee, has sent a letter to all members of the bar of New York city, in which it is said that never in the history of the state has there been a candidate for governor better equipped for the performance of his multifarious duties than Nathan L. Miller.

The committee was organized to support the candidacy of Judge Miller for governor. Edward W. Hatch, E. Henry LaCombe, Louis Marshall, Elihu Root and George W. Wickham are vice chairmen. Montfort Mills is secretary. Among the members of the committee are James M. Beck, Joseph H. Choate, Jr., William Nelson Cromwell, Oherardi Davis, H. W. DeForest, Holland S. Duell, Alan Fox, William D. Guthrie, Arthur L. Livermore, Benjamin B. McAlpin, Laugdon P. Marvin, Robert C. Merrin, J. Van Vechten Olcott, Kara P. Prentiss, Elihu Root and Elihu Root, Jr., Herbert L. Satterlee, Henry B. Stimson, Henry W. Taft, Isaac Untermyer, Bronson Winthrop and Henry A. Wise.

The letter states that it is necessary that the highest order of statesmanship is required for the efficient conduct of the business of the state, adding:

As comptroller of the state, Nathan L. Miller demonstrated his business capacity. As a judicial officer serving in the supreme court, the appellate division and the court of appeals for twelve years, his record of achievement has been illustrious. His opinions are models of learning; good sense and intellectual power, and give evidence that he is not a mere theorist; but essentially practical. He has never ceased to take an active interest in public questions. He is independent and fearless in act and word his sincerity and wisdom have shone forth and withal he is a warm hearted approachable gentleman. The members of the legal profession, who without exception, entertain the utmost confidence in his integrity and ability, will not fail to appreciate his pre-eminent fitness for the chief magistracy of the state. ### PINE HILL.

Pine Hill, Oct. 28.—Mr. and Mrs. Hezekiah Gomoo, two of our most highly respected citizens, left Pine Hill on Monday last to visit relatives in Pleasant Valley, Indiana.

On Sunday last the officers for next year were elected at all points of the charge. The pastor thanked the loyal leaders for their faithful cooperation and was pleased to be able to announce that during his four years of happy Christian ministry spent in this beautiful mountain district over four thousand dollars had been raised and spent in renovating churches and reducing debts, and all four churches were free of debt with the exception of Pine Hill, which has only a two hundred dollar debt. He said it was a direct answer to his prayers. When a lady approached him a few days ago and told him she would like to give a hundred dollars on condition that the people of Pine Hill raise another hundred between now and April, 1921, he informed her that half the second hundred had already been subscribed, and he nominated Mrs. Henry Cole captain of the ladies and Anthony Gomoo captain of the men to distribute collecting papers among the people and solicit their gifts. He expects them to raise more than is needed and have sufficient to endow the church. Please help them for they are trying to help others. The pastor's farewell message on Sunday will be "The Christian Benediction." Text 2 Cor. 8:14. The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, the love of God the Father and the communion of the Holy Ghost be with you all. Service will be held at Pine Hill at 7:30 instead of 8 o'clock until further notice. Come and worship with us.

The pastor has arranged to leave Pine Hill Monday afternoon and to call on the latter November 6 at 10 a. m. He will spend the winter with his mother in England after an absence of seven years. He expects to visit the headquarters of France and other places of interest in Europe, and expects to return in the early spring. He extends his greetings to his many friends in this country.

Over sixty million breakfasts with Maple Karo last year

Does it interest you to know that Maple Karo outsells all different kinds of maple syrups? Delicious flavor—moderate price the reason

Two big reasons stand out for the record breaking sales of Maple Karo.

First—the flavor of Maple Karo is not an "imitation." The makers are the world's largest users of the purest and best flavored maple sugar.

Over a thousand tons are brought annually from Vermont and Canada—where the finest maple trees grow.

This sugar is used to make Maple Karo and to give it its delicious flavor.

The second reason is quite as interesting as the first:

"Maple Karo is remarkably moderate in price—selling at a lower price than any other syrup of approaching quality and flavor."

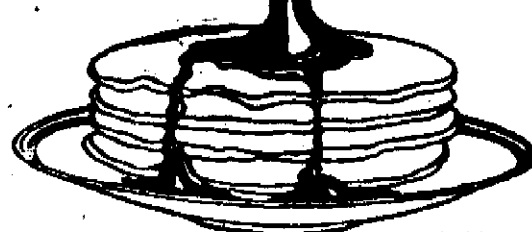

Over five million cans were sold last year.

Get a can of Maple Karo in the GREEN CAN from your grocer today. If you are not pleased with it, the grocer will gladly return your money.

HEARING HELD ON GAS CO. PETITION

After Testimony by President Beal, Adjournment Was Taken to November 22 at Kingston—Request to Collect Higher Rates Pending Decision is Denied.

The application of the Kingston Gas & Electric Company for leave to increase its rate to consumers of gas in this city and vicinity came on for a hearing before Public Service Commissioner Kellogg at Albany on Wednesday afternoon. Corporation Counsel William D. Brinrier appeared for the city in opposition to the application; the Gas & Electric Company was represented by M. H. Bigelow for its attorneys, Gould & Wilkie, and by its president, T. R. Beal, and its Kingston manager, C. R. Stull.

A motion was made by Mr. Brinrier at the outset of the hearing to dismiss the company's application on the ground, among other grounds, that the company was bound by its contract with the city. This motion was argued by counsel at some length, at the close of which Commissioner Kellogg said he would overrule the motion and hear the evidence as there were important legal questions involved.

The company's only witness was President Beal, whose examination was conducted by Mr. Brinrier on condition that he should be allowed opportunity to cross-examine Mr. Beal at adjourned hearing.

Mr. Beal was examined at length by Mr. Bigelow, and testified to substantially the facts stated in the company's petition, which has been published in The Freeman. At the close of his testimony, counsel for the company asked the court to permit the company to collect the increased rates and deposit such increase in a trust company, subject to the final decision of the commission.

Commissioner Kellogg smiled and said: "Ask Mr. Brinrier about that." Mr. Brinrier replied that of course he would not consent to any such plan, as the money would be just as well in the pockets of the consumers of gas as it would be in any trust company, and anyway, he did not expect that any increase in rates would be granted by this or any other tribunal.

The hearing was adjourned until November 22, at Kingston. Counsel for the company asked for a shorter adjournment, stating the company was losing money every day.

"You are asking a favor here," replied Commissioner Kellogg, "and the city shall have ample time to protect its rights."

Francis C. Merritt, representing the Kingston Taxpayers' Association, said that the association desired to interpose an answer to the application and that its members wanted to appear in opposition.

BOTH CORRECT.

And Rabbinic Dignity Not Lowered by Teaching.

Kingston, N. Y., Oct. 28, 1920.

Dear Sir:—In the issue of yesterday's Freeman a writer who signs himself "One Who Knows" says: "A teacher of the Hebrew language is not a rabbi or even could be unless he studies for that office," etc., to which your esteemed paper in reply refers to Webster's dictionary, which defines rabbi as "master, lord, teacher; a Jewish title of respect or honor for a teacher or doctor of the law."

Permit me to say that you both are correct. The difference is in the point of view. Officially speaking, a rabbi is one who has the authority or title conferred upon him by one of those who are authorized or qualified to do so. Etymologically, rabbi means master, teacher, or doctor of the law. The meaning of rabbi is like the term "doctor." It depends on the sense in which it is used. Doctor originally meant "teacher." Now, when we speak of "the doctor," we mean a physician, unless otherwise specified.

I beg, however, to differ with "One Who Knows" when he says: "It is not a rabbi's office to teach children as it would be considered beneath his dignity." It is true that congregations usually do not expect the rabbi to teach a class of children, especially in a large school where the rabbi usually acts in the capacity of superintendent, who supervises all the classes, but it is not considered undignified on the part of the rabbi to teach children. The greatest rabbis considered it an honor and a privilege to teach children "in the way they should go." God himself is represented in Jewish literature as teaching the children that died young.

Yours truly,
BERNARD M. KAPLAN,
Rabbi Temple Emanuel.

RED CROSS STAYS BY OUR FIGHTING FORCES

War Veterans Numbering 1,400 in Atlantic Division Hospitals Not Forgotten in Peacetime Service.

Able bodied men in the Army and Navy, as well as the disabled members of our fighting forces, will continue to receive any assistance and advice within the power of the Red Cross as a result of the request of the Army and Navy Departments to have the Red Cross act as the connecting link between the men of the new peace-time fighting forces and their families. The Red Cross is the only agency authorized to do this work and the Atlantic Division of the American Red Cross has complied with the official request by assigning Field Directors and necessary assistants to forty-five military and naval stations in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

Innumerable appeals for help and advice come to the Red Cross every day from men who are in ignorance or who have been misinformed concerning allotments, insurance, back pay, Liberty Bonds, etc. Their problems are solved for them and relief furnished, whether financial, medical, social or legal. Communication between men and their families is encouraged, and in cases where mothers are unable to locate their sons or vice versa, the Red Cross is instrumental in bringing the two together.

In cooperation with Army and Navy authorities the Red Cross investigates home conditions for verification of facts relating to requests for furloughs or discharge upon dependency grounds, and decisions made by officers are largely governed by Red Cross reports. In cases where furloughs are granted on account of illness in families and men are financially unable to make the trip, the Red Cross advances them funds as a loan. It is to carry on these and other necessary activities that the Atlantic Division of the Red Cross will hold its Fourth Annual Roll Call, November 14 to 20.

There still remain in general hospitals, throughout the Atlantic Division a total of 1,400 former fighting men who no longer need hospital care are also receiving Red Cross attention in one way or another. Convalescent homes or rooms are maintained just as they were during the war, wards are visited regularly, cigarettes and delicacies distributed and recuperating patients taken for outings as soon as they are able to walk.

RED CROSS JUNIORS HELP BLIND CHINESE

Blindness—the most pitiable affliction to which mankind is heir—is a new and formidable enemy in the Junior Red Cross. American school children enrolled in this organization—the Atlantic Division alone has 1,133, 215 of these active youngsters—are assisting in a campaign to fight blindness in China, where conditions have become so appalling that the city for help is reaching half way around the world. No matter how distant the call we have reached the end, the Junior Red Cross is as ready with practical substantial help as they are with sympathy, and the approach of the Fourth Red Cross Roll Call November 14 to 20 will show how many young hearts are going out to the thousands of unfortunate blind men who may be doomed to walking all their lives in darkness.

The Atlantic Division Juniors are proving the sincerity of their slogan, "I serve" by helping the children of some other countries besides China, and extending their sympathy here at home. Last year their manufactured more than 6,000 toys, 3,000 tables and chairs, which with 34,000 garments of various kinds, were shipped to the homes of children in the devastated and disease-ridden sections of Europe. The program for the current school year calls for a continuance of this splendid work as well as for other worth while activities. Membership in the Junior Red Cross does not involve any financial obligation. The children do not have to pay dues or membership fees. One subscription for each room in the school to the Junior Red Cross News, which carries illustrated articles of interest to children, is all that is necessary for enrollment.

VETERANS STILL NEED "GREATEST MOTHER"

Red Cross work of all kinds in the United States for the coming year calls for an appropriation of $16,700, 900. The largest item of this budget for home activities, including the development of the nursing resources of the country and the extension of health education, is for the department that is still looking after the welfare of thousands of former fighting men and their families. Red Cross assistance of one sort or another is still needed by these soldiers and sailors who are always the first obligation of the relief organization.

Of the amount set aside for work in the United States, $5,000,000 is held in reserve for disaster relief. This plan was adopted because the Red Cross is invariably the first thought of a community when a disaster occurs.

ROOSEVELT TALK THRILLS AUDIENCE

A fight against rich people, for his father had been a wealthy man and he himself was fairly well off and knew what good as well as what ill could be accomplished through wealth. What he was fighting was the grinding of the poor by capital, the buying of our laws, and gaining the privileges thereby. Roosevelt exclaimed in the conversation, "The government will not last ten years unless this can be stopped." He firmly believed that God had called him to rebuke that evil, and hoped that he might be permitted to live to see the day when the rich and the influential, the poor and the unimportant, should have absolutely equal privileges. He did live to see that day, and furthermore, God spared him for another mission, that of sounding the note of alarm in the world war, of arousing the nation to arms, to the following of our flag, showing that America stands for an all-world democracy.

In telling of Mr. Roosevelt as the bravest man he ever knew, afraid of nothing, Dr. Iglehart told several most entertaining anecdotes of Roosevelt's hunting in Africa.

Great as Dr. Iglehart had considered all of the characteristics of this man before mentioned, he considered his affection the greatest and most beautiful characteristic of the man, especially his affection for his family, which amounted almost to a worship of his wife and children. The speaker forcibly reminded his hearers that always the greatest hearted men of the world were the greatest men of history, they were the men of love.

Roosevelt's love for his family was almost pathetic, and the speaker expressed the opinion that "Roosevelt's letters to his children" would be read by generations of other children and loved by them.

Then Dr. Iglehart told of going back to Sagamore Hill when it was an empty house with all the family privileges thereby. Roosevelt exclaimed in the conversation, "The government will not last ten years unless this can be stopped." He firmly believed that God had called him to rebuke that evil, and hoped that he might be permitted to live to see the day when the rich and the influential, the poor and the unimportant, should have absolutely equal privileges. He did live to see that day, and furthermore, God spared him for another mission, that of sounding the note of alarm in the world war, of arousing the nation to arms, to the following of our flag, showing that America stands for an all-world democracy.

PASS THE NEWS TO OTHERS.

PLATT N. CHASE,
Secretary Co. Committee.

President Roosevelt was systematically good to the poor and he had a deep conviction of conscience, having things that were wrong with a hot hatred.

The speaker then told of the incidents relative to the letter written him by the ex-president congratulating him upon the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment for which he had fought so long and so hard. During the war, Mr. Roosevelt was insistent upon a war prohibition against the making of food supplies into liquor of any sort. "Theodore Roosevelt," said the speaker, "had a patriotic soul that was a consuming fire, and the war broke his heart!" Dr. Iglehart doubted if anyone would ever know what it cost Colonel Roosevelt to give up participation in the war, but he himself said that after all he sent all of his boys and that was better than going himself, for he loved his boys better than himself. The audience was reminded of that strong and inspiring letter written by Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt on the death of Quentin, wherein instead of regrets and moaning, they expressed their pride in that they had had a boy to send, and that he had had the chance to show the stuff that was in him before he "went west."

Dr. Iglehart closed his inspiring address with an apostrophe to "The Flag of Our Country," and an apostrophe to "Theodore Roosevelt, the Loving Giant," that were classics in diction and thrilling in import and delivery, making a most fitting finale to the evening's talk on "Theodore Roosevelt; The Man as I Knew Him."

77th Birthday Observed.

Krumville, Oct. 28.—An informal gathering was held at the home of Mrs. Sarah Day at Krumville on Monday night, the occasion being the 77th anniversary of her birth. Mrs. Day, who has nearly reached the century mark and who in spite of advancing age is in fairly good health, was agreeably surprised and welcomed her guests most heartily. The evening was pleasantly spent and delicious refreshments were served during the evening by Mrs. Donohue. The combined ages of six in the party was 472. The company broke up at an early hour after wishing Mrs. Day sincere congratulations and many more happy returns of the day. Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Donohue, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Davis, Hugh Donohue, Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Merrihew, Mrs. Bertha Seiple, Miss Naomi Seiple, Gardner Donohue, Ruth Donohue, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Donohue of Kingston and Mrs. G. W. Cosman of White Plains.

Field-Shaw.

An October wedding of interest to many Kingston people was solemnized at Walden on Wednesday, October 27, at high noon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Claude M. Shaw (Mr. Shaw is a brother of Mrs. Oscar Edwards of Albany avenue, this city), when their daughter, Miss Frances Augusta Shaw, became the bride of Clifford Allen Field of Northfield, Mass., who is the instructor in manual training at Mr. Hermon School. The home was artistically decorated with autumnal leaves and yellow chrysanthemums. The occasion was of particular interest in that it was the 33rd anniversary of the wedding of the bride's parents, and the bride was gowned in the white satin wedding dress which her mother wore, presenting a charming picture with her veil and shower bouquet of bride roses and swansons. She was attended by Mrs. John F. Harris of Brooklyn, who acted as matron of honor and who was a bridesmaid at the wedding of the bride's mother. She was also handsomely gowned in white and carried yellow chrysanthemums. The bridesmaid was Miss Katherine Craig of Wyoming, who was most attractively gowned in burnt orange georgette over mahogany satin and carried mahogany colored chrysanthemums. The best man was Mr. Fleming of Northfield, and the usher, Norton Shaw, brother of the bride. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. K. Fuller, pastor of the Wurts Street Baptist Church, who married Mr. and Mrs. Claude Shaw. The special wedding music consisted of a vocal solo, "Dawning," sung by Mrs. Parmelee, with Miss Lillian Healey at the piano, and by the singing of "Beloved, it is Dawn," sung by Mr. Hawksley. Following the ceremony and congratulations an elaborate collation was served. On their return from their wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. Field will make their home at Mr. Hermon. There were present at the wedding guests from Wyoming, Brooklyn, New York, White Plains, Kingston and Poughkeepsie.

This young man is sticking his head through the hole made in a fourteen-inch-thick armor plate by a fourteen-inch shell at a distance of two hundred yards. The test was made at the Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds before members of the Army Ordnance Association, who inspected some of Uncle Sam's new field guns. The shell went clear through the heavy armor. The gun fires a projectile weighing 510 pounds a distance of 26,850 yards.

HAVANA MAY GET HEAVYWEIGHT BOUT

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 28.—The big fight goes to Havana.

This is the story of Promoters Rickard, Cocoran and Brady, who are about to sign Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier and they are sticking to it.

Some of the second guessers, however, are calculating today that the Havana angle is somewhat of a tropical myth and that in the end the fight will be staged right here in the New York as had been intended and it is certain the attraction would draw a million dollars.

The switch to Havana came as a complete surprise. The promoters got together late Wednesday to consider the articles and make arrangements to pacify Jack Kearns, who objected to the philosophy of the contracts in some spots. This little matter was attended to promptly and Kearns is now ready to autograph the documents at any time and place named by Messrs. Rickard, Brady and Cocoran. About the Havana angle, it is said a Cuban syndicate made an offer that could not be refused, but just what it is has not been divulged.

Another reason for the sudden switch may lie with the New York state boxing commission. The commission has not been partial to heavyweight attractions and it is just possible that the boxing body informed the promoters that they would save time and trouble by making plans to stage the world's heavyweight championship somewhere else. There is no direct evidence that this was the case, but it is possible.

The time and place for signing the articles of agreement probably will be set by the promoters today. Carpentier and Dempsey are eager to sign and get it over with and Dempsey and Kearns are ready now that objectionable clauses in the articles have been revamped.

UNIQUE RECITAL AT HIGH SCHOOL

A unique and pleasing recital of concert was presented Wednesday evening at the High School auditorium by Miss Lucile Corder and Miss Lucille Collette, who presence was secured by Stock & Cordts.

At the opening of the recital Peter R. Hawley, who is no stranger now to Kingston audiences through his having appeared here before at previous concerts, explained Mr. Edison's art of re-creating music and stated that Miss Lucile Corder would sing in unison with her re-created voice and that the audience would not be able to tell the difference between re-created and living voice, but many people were skeptical. The skeptics were soon convinced, however, for, in Miss Corder's initial number on the program, her lips ceased to move, but her song went on. Slowly it dawned on the mystified audience that Miss Corder was no longer singing, though her voice came forth as clear and sweet as before. Again she sang, but the audience only knew it was the living Miss Corder by the motion of her lips. It seemed as if there were two artists on the stage, two singers, but only one voice. The tones emanating from the New Edison were identical with those of the living artist, and it was impossible to detect any difference.

After the applause which followed this "miracle" exhibition, Miss Lucille Collette shared the stage with her fellow musician, the New Edison. She sang in unison with the re-creation of her art. Only by watching them could one know when the living artist was being heard alone and when the music came in double measure.

Though it was a stormy night, the hall was taxed to its capacity, all seats being taken and many persons standing through the entire evening. The concert closed with a piano selection by Miss Collette which demonstrated that she was an artist of the highest order in her profession, and by vocal numbers by Miss Corder to which in an encore she responded by singing "The last Rose of Summer," she endearing herself to all who heard her with the feeling in which she expressed the songs she rendered.
